

"Hello Listeners, this is Lyra Ossenhammer of the Weaver's Union interrupting your regularly scheduled broadcasting on 101.3 Triumvirate Radio with this special announcement. While I am sure our many listeners were very much looking forward to my colleagues and I to share our opinions on the many news worthy events that have occurred recently such as; the Triumvirate Fleet's visit to the Attaka Tower Republic, the sudden alcohol shortage within the Attaka Tower Republic and all the nonsense coming out of Korina, we unfortunately will not be going over those today. Instead we have a statement issued by Captain Pekorra herself;

Ahem

"Due to the appearance of an unidentified hazard threatening Weaver's Union personnel and the unknown potential risks of this hazard being spread, all travel to Vicim and through the Vicim Gate will be suspended until further notice. I offer my sincere apologies to the people of both Laurentia's Landing and Hutojin whose lives and jobs will be disrupted by this dramatic action but my first responsibility must be to protect the people from this unknown hazard. I have contacted a number of experts in biomorphology who will be investigating the matter and a full explanation will be offered as soon as I am able to provide one. I thank you all for your understanding and cooperation in this matter. Oh and Zacharius' first name isn't fucking 'Norman'. -Captain Pekorra the Conductor."

"Well there you have it folks, there's some weird shit in Vicim and anyone who doesn't want to fall over bleeding from the eyes or get shot by us had best steer clear of Vicim until further notice. Now if you'll excuse me I've gotta grab my shit and get on an evac skiff, I hope to be back on the air soon. Lyra Ossenhammer and 101.3 Triumvirate Radio signing off."
